College Admissions Committee

Dear Admissions Advisors,

My name is Dr. Svetlana Monastyrskaya, DDS. I work as f the head dentists at S&Y Diamond Dental PC on 161 Atlantic Ave # 1, Brooklyn, NY 11201. This letter is in regards to Ethan Khotylev, an intern and student of mine throughout his junior year in Highschool.

Ethan is extremely bright, and has a passion for learning. Throughout my time working with him, Ethan never seized to amaze me. I would always try to educate and involve Ethan in all of our daily routines in our office, and he was always eager to assist: whether it was bringing boxes full of medical supplies into the office, sterilizing equipment and operating rooms, or even just helping my assistants and hygienists during cleanings and procedures.

He would always make sure to ask me questions about anything he saw during the procedures. One thing that I must note is that Ethan always knew the correct time to ask me his abundance of questions. He knew never to interrupt me while I was either working on or speaking to patients, and would wait until after I was finished and in my office to discuss everything he was curious about.

Ethan is an extremely quick learner. After his first couple days at my office, learning how different procedures were explained to patients, he was able to explain the same ones himself to new patients, verbatim (of course, with me in the room). I have had many interns, currently and throughout the years, and Ethan has an energy around him that sets him aside from all of his peers. He is curious, ambitious, extremely personable, and an exceptionally ardent young man. He will go far and achieve whatever he dreams, while bringing his same aura to those around him. An acceptance to your school would not only allow him to strive further to become the professional he wants to be, but also enable him to become an asset to your university.

Sincerely,

Dr. Svetlana Monastyrskaya, DDS
